Dick Stewart does not stop originating projects that make Beaufort a unique and wonderful place to live. How fortunate we are to have Sharon and Dick as friends and neighbors.

Whether it is providing a venue for a charity event, revitalizing our downtown, protecting our natural resources, stimulating economic opportunity or perpetuating the ambiance of the Lowcountry, this man Stewart is relentless.

He keeps on coming (and giving) and he's so consistent that we could almost take him for granted.

The Lemon Island marina is one more "opportunity in work clothes" that Dick has recognized, and if experience is a guide, he will turn a neglected property into a viable, attractive asset from which we will all benefit. And he does these projects while keeping and enhancing the Lowcountry experience.

At a time when the private sector is taking a beating on many fronts, Dick Stewart demonstrates what private development and initiative can achieve in a most positive way.
